

Bruce Johnson, Solar Farmer and Video Production Professional

Bruce A. Johnson is a 1981 graduate of the Boston University College of Communications, and has been continuously employed in broadcast television for over 35 years. A life-long geek, Johnson was a very early adopter of home computing and online communications, including a stint as a sysop on the pioneering CompuServe online service. Johnson had his first rooftop solar arrays installed in 2007, and added more in 2012. At that same time he purchased a Nissan Leaf electric car, which has been 100% solar powered for over 45,000 miles.