

Benefits in Brief

Members are key to WPUI's existence.
Members ensure that WPUI continues to exist and thus can continue to provide non-partisan, objective programs about the utility industry.

Programming, Networking, a Voice the Conversation

As a Member of the Wisconsin Public Utility Institute, you will have the opportunity to participate in public policy forums with regulators and other government officials, public interest groups, professional advisors, utilities, competitors and the general public.

Members may have a direct voice in WPUI programming. In 2016, our programs included:

- Community-Based Solar
- Four-part Series about Trends in the utility industry
- Grid Storage
- Energy Utility Basics (annual week-long course)

Members are important resources in developing programming. Members may suggest topics, help develop the content of programs chosen by the Board Program Advisory Committee, assist in finding and selecting speakers and panelists, and sponsor programs.

Members can request programming using the Chatham House Rule. These members-only programs allow discussion of issues in a "no attribution" format.

Members are recognized in our printed materials and on our website.

Cost Savings

Members enjoy reduced registration fees for WPUI's programming. In addition, registration fees can be refunded, less an administration fee, up until the day before the program.

Members receive all electronic mailings regarding WPUI events, seminars, and programs.
