

SAM SHANNON

Public Service Commission of Wisconsin

Sam Shannon has been a policy and rate analyst at the Public Service Commission of Wisconsin since 2013. He testifies as an expert witness regarding cost-of-service studies and other policy-related matters before the Commission. On behalf of the Commission, Sam works on electric, natural gas, and water utility rate cases; has worked with utilities to design community solar programs and other innovative rate offerings; and has drafted filings for submission to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission related to DER integration in wholesale energy markets. Sam is a member of the NARUC Staff Subcommittees on Electricity and Rate Design where he has contributed to the NARUC Distributed Energy Resource Rate Design & Compensation Manual. Additionally, Sam has published in The Electricity Journal on new electric rate offerings. Sam holds a BA in philosophy and Spanish literature from Southwestern University and a master's in public affairs from UW-Madison.