MITCH OHLY

The Wisconsin Paper Council

Mitch Ohly is vice president for transportation, forestry, and workforce relations for The Wisconsin Paper Council. He is responsible for developing and implementing industry relations and strategies that assist the paper, pulp, and forestry industries in understanding and navigating transportation, forestry, and workforce issues. Mitch monitors regulatory matters pertinent to these sectors of our industry and provides WPC members with accurate, up-to-date information regarding state and federal regulatory concerns. Before joining WPC, Mitch held several positions within the Wisconsin State Legislature. His roles included policy advisor to the Assembly Majority Leader's office and clerk for the Senate Committee on Sporting Heritage, Mining, and Forestry. He has a strong background and brings a tremendous amount of knowledge to his WPC position. Mitch grew up in Minnesota and attended the University of Wisconsin-Madison where he earned degrees in political science and English. He lives in Stoughton with his significant other, his dog, and two cats. He loves cheering for Badger sports, binge watching Netflix and movies, bowling, and visiting new breweries.
