

RIKAELA GREANE

Taft Stettinius & Hollister LLP

Rikaela Greane is an associate at Taft Stettinius & Hollister where she practices primarily in the areas of public utility regulation, energy industry regulation and commercial transactions, and administrative law and procedure. Rikaela represents utilities and other energy market participants on a range of state and federal energy regulation matters with a focus on traditional electric and natural gas utility rate cases, plant construction and retirements, and retail electric and natural gas supplier compliance. Before joining Taft, Rikaela was an associate at Quarles & Brady in the energy, environment, and natural resources practice group, where she gained significant experience in ratemaking and regulatory law. Rikaela received her B.A. from St. Olaf College and her J.D. from Vermont Law School.
