

CHANDRA FARLEY ReSolve Consulting

Chandra Farley is an activist at heart and credits her parents with instilling a sense of duty to always do what she can to advance justice and fairness. With a passion for elevating the connection between environmental stewardship, strong communities, and our daily lives, Chandra continues to build upon a career foundation in the design and construction industry that informs her perspective on built and natural environments. Currently, Chandra serves as the CEO of ReSolve, a consulting practice with a mission to increase the impact of climate justice initiatives by creating equity-centered delivery infrastructure. Chandra also founded the “Good Energy Project” with a vision to connect the transformational power of Black women to the movement for just and equitable clean energy. With career history at Southface Energy Institute and Partnership for Southern Equity, Chandra is well-known in energy, utility, and climate justice circles. She has formed national partnerships to improve the environmental and financial sustainability of non-profit facilities and developed equity-centered strategies to advance energy and climate justice at local, regional, and national scales. Chandra is the co-chair of the Hive Fund for Climate and Gender Justice Advisory Board, chair of the Georgia NAACP Environmental and Climate Justice Committee, a graduate of the EPA’s Environmental Justice Academy, president emeritus of the Environmental Justice Academy Alumni Association, and serves on the board of directors for Community Movement Builders, the Georgia Conservation Voters Education Fund, the People’s Justice Council/Alabama Interfaith Power & Light, and Greenlink Analytics.