

SARAH FREEMAN

Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission

Sarah Freeman was appointed to the Indiana Utility Regulatory Commission (IURC) by then-Governor Mike Pence on September 19, 2016, and reappointed by Governor Eric Holcomb on December 29, 2017. Sarah chairs the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners' (NARUC) subcommittee on education and research and is a member of the NARUC committees on critical infrastructure and on telecommunications. She is a member of the board of directors for the Organization of MISO States (OMS) and the Universal Service Administrative Company (USAC) and a member of the advisory board for the Financial Research Institute (FRI) at the University of Missouri. Sarah previously represented the IURC on the board of directors for the Organization of PJM States (PJM). Previously, Sarah spent 16 years as a senior staff attorney with the nonpartisan Indiana Legislative Services where she drafted utility and transportation legislation and served as counsel to numerous legislative committees. In addition, she was a member of the executive committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) and served on the NCSL task force on cybersecurity. A native hoosier, Sarah earned her undergraduate degrees in psychology, French, and political science from Indiana University Bloomington and her J.D. from the Indiana University Bloomington Maurer School of Law.
