

HOLLY TAYLOR

California Independent System Operator

Holly Taylor is the manager of regional affairs for the California Independent System Operator (CAISO). She is responsible for leading regional outreach efforts and facilitating engagement with stakeholders from across the Western Interconnection. Previously, Holly served as director of state, federal, and international affairs for the Western Interstate Energy Board (WIEB). In that role, she worked with state and provincial regulators and policymakers to explore and develop consensus positions on energy policy and matters pertaining to electric grid reliability. Before joining WIEB, Holly worked for the National Renewable Energy Laboratory as a legal and regulatory analyst, analyzing federal and state requirements governing the development and licensing of renewable energy projects. She earned her J.D. and LL.M. from the University of Denver Sturm College of Law.
