

RIKAELA GREANE
Foley & Lardner LLP

Rikaela Greane is an associate and business lawyer with Foley & Lardner LLP where she is a member of the firm's finance and financial institutions practice and of the energy industry team. Rikaela advises energy market participants on project finance, development, and acquisitions, including for multiple utility-scale projects. She also assists clients with a range of energy project documents including power purchase agreements, REC agreements, and construction contracts. Rikaela has significant experience with state and federal energy regulation matters which she draws on to counsel her clients. Her experience includes traditional electric and natural gas utility rate cases and compliance filings, seeking regulatory approval of transmission line projects, and seeking regulatory approval of plant constructions, acquisitions, and retirements. She also has advised retail electric and natural gas suppliers on regulatory applications and compliance. She is treasurer of the Public Utilities Section of the State Bar of Wisconsin and has been admitted to the bar in Wisconsin and Minnesota. Rikaela earned a B.A. in environmental studies and political science from St. Olaf College (Minnesota). She earned her J.D. from Vermont Law School. While in law school, she served as an articles editor of the Vermont Law Review and was a research associate at the School's Institute for Energy and the Environment, where she researched and published materials on RTO governance practices and community solar development guidelines.
