

PHIL La SUSA Alliant Energy

Phil La Susa is assistant vice president of gas strategy and sustainability for Alliant Energy. He also oversees the environmental services, corporate sustainability, and supply chain functions. He is responsible for developing the corporate and regulatory strategies for the company's gas distribution business and executing the plans and actions associated with these strategies. Phil plays a critical role in the growth of Alliant's gas business by building a portfolio of executable projects through careful evaluation of potential opportunities.

Before joining Alliant Energy, Phil was vice president of strategic growth and client engagement for a global consulting, engineering, and construction management firm. He was responsible for company strategy definition and execution, with accountability for all aspects of the overall business development, marketing, and external relations for a $1 billion oil, gas, and utility business. He currently serves as a board member for the Columbus Symphony Orchestra, is an officer and treasurer for the Society of Gas Lighting (a society of natural gas executives, founded in 1875), and previously served on multiple boards: Ohio FBLA, Southeastern Equipment Company, Flairsoft, E.I.S., Prince Pipeline Integrity, ITS Environmental, New Vision Dance, Co., and INGAA Foundation. Phil actively participates in the American Gas Association, Ohio Oil & Gas Association, Northeast Gas Association, Midwest Energy Association, American Public Gas Association, Edison Electrical Institute, and the DC International Club. He was a founding member of The Ohio Water Partnership and of the Carolina Gas Coalition and has participated in the Ohio Business Roundtable. He served on the external advisory committees of the Ohio Department of Transportation's Carbon Reduction Strategy and Ohio's Broadband and 5G Sector Partnership. Phil received a bachelor of science degree in environmental science from Otterbein University (Westerville OH).
