RICHARD HEINEMANN

Boardman Clark

Richard Heinemann has spent nearly his entire twenty-plus year career in the energy industry, primarily representing municipal electric utilities and joint action agencies. As an attorney with Boardman Clark, he currently serves as outside general counsel for four such agencies: Central Minnesota Municipal Power Agency, Great Lakes Utilities, Northern Illinois Municipal Power Agency, and the Upper Midwest Municipal Energy Group. The municipal electric utility members of these agencies are located in states throughout the Upper Midwest, including Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan and Minnesota. Richard has advised clients on a wide range of matters, including power supply contracts, generation project development, agency governance and formation issues, strategic planning, asset transfers, construction agreements, intergovernmental agreements, territorial disputes, sustainability (“green”) practices, brownfield redevelopment, regulatory compliance, and transmission matters in both the Midcontinent Independent System Operator and PJM Interconnection. Richard has a wide range of experience in state and federal regulatory matters, including environmental and transmission-related issues, and has represented joint action agency clients before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission as well as state municipal utilities and regulatory agencies in Wisconsin, Illinois, and Minnesota. He is vice president of the Midwest Energy Bar Association, secretary and executive committee board member for both the Boys and Girls Club of Dane County and Sustain Dane, and board chair for the Wisconsin Environmental Initiative. Richard received an AB from Brown University, a PhD in German and social thought from the University of Chicago, and a JD from the University of Wisconsin Law School.
